➤ Psychology and Yoga Therapy

The relationship between the mind and body is the field of psychosomatic medicine. Disease is understood by accounting for all the process of the whole human organism.

The mental processes, sensation, perception, attention, memory, emotions and will. The yogic concept of its development causes and consequences of frustration and conflicts psychosomatic problems, and psychiatric ailments are cured.

Adjusting to the environment requires constant give and take between the individual and society. This makes a person vulnerable to tension and anxiety. In order to develop control over all aspects of personality. Marshi Patanjali developed yoga. Yoga has guidelines for behavior in the social milieu as well as exercises for development of control over the nervous system. Essentially the aim is to move from the state of waking to self-realization, through the eight stages from Yama, Niyama, Asana, Pranayama, Pratyahara, Dharana, Dhyana to Samadhi. Yoga therapy is beneficial when practiced over a year.

Yoga is derived from Sanskrit word yuj, means connectivity, remembering, union. Yoga is the way of solution to all problems. Yoga is the restraint of Chitta operations. Chitta the conscience power is self established as in absoluteness. During yoga mind remains alert and awareness expands.

Further marshi Patanjali said. "Yoga chitta vritti nirodhaha". Mahari Vasisth said, "manah prashamanopayaha yoga ethiabidhiyate", means " Art of keeping ones mind blissfull is yoga". In Bhagavadgita, "Yoga Bhavati Dukha Nivarak yoga" salvage the sorrows of mind.

The practice of yoga is an art and science dedicated to creating union between body, mind and spirit. Its objective is to assist the practitioner in using the breath and body to foster an awareness of ourselves as individualized beings intimately connected to the unified whole of creation. In short it is about making balance and creating equanimity so as to live in peace, good health and harmony with the greater whole. Yoga education is one of the most powerful ancient agencies in molding the character and personality of the individual and in determining the future of individuals and nations. It's a process of acquiring skill and dexterity in walks of life, true sense is a process of aiding the all-round development of an individual – physical, intellectual, social, moral and spiritual. Its one of the strong instrument of social change.

Yoga education means inculcating in the children a sense of humanism, deep concern for the well being of others and nation. This can be accomplished only when we instill in the children a deep feeling and commitment to values that would build this country and bring back to the people pride in work that brings order, security and assured progress. Yoga education is a broad framework of sensitizing the educational community towards human excellence based on personal experiences. It gives inner direction to man for his all round development centered in moral and spiritual consciousness and involves three components of human personality viz., cognitive, affective and conative. Further yoga education has three bases, philosophical or metaphysical, psychological and socio-cultural.

II. CONCLUSION

In a nutshell, yoga can play a pivotal role in bringing up the child as a good human being to the self and society. By yoga the very purpose and meaning of education will be realized in its true sense.
