A motivational speech on the theme “India@2047 – How Today’s Youth Will Write the Next Chapter of Civilization” was delivered by Sri Sunil Viswanath Deodhar on 18th March at Rabindranath Thakur Viswavidyalaya (RTV). The programme was organized by RTV under the aegis of the Viksit Bharat@2047 Cell with the aim of inspiring young minds to actively contribute towards building a developed, strong, and culturally rooted India by 2047.

On this occasion, the Hon’ble Vice Chancellor Prof. Manabendra Dutta Choudhury addressed the gathering by emphasizing the crucial role of students and young citizens in shaping the future of the nation through knowledge, discipline, innovation, and character. In his inspiring speech, Sri Sunil Viswanath Deodhar, Founder of My Home India, called upon the youth to dream big, remain committed to national values, and take responsibility for writing the next chapter of Indian civilization. He underlined the importance of youth power, cultural consciousness, leadership, and nation-building in realizing the vision of India@2047. Dr. Manjit Saikia provided the welcome address and warmly received the guest and highlighted the relevance of such visionary talks for the youth. Registrar, Deans, Director IQAC, Heads of Departments, Nodal officer, Viksit Bharat @2047 Cell, faculty members, students, and NSS volunteers, enthusiastically participated in the program. The event was gracefully anchored by Dr. Valentina Teronpi, while the vote of thanks was delivered by Dr. Achala Bhattacharjee. The programme concluded on a highly inspiring note, leaving the audience motivated to contribute meaningfully towards the vision of a developed and self-reliant India.
